

RALLYING THE COMMUNITY

For a number of years I have been bringing NCCR posters and flyers to Christ Presbyterian Church, which is just across the street from where I live. I also make sure that I take our posters to Fujiya Market on the corner of Virgil and Clinton, which is the local Japanese market, that everyone in the Virgil area goes to. Since I have been going to Fujiya for a long time and know most of the people that work there, they always make sure to display our poster on the window at the entrance to the store. That way everyone is sure to notice it when they come in. I am also a member of the Hollywood Independent Church and of course I always make sure to bring flyers for all my friends there. Some of the members of my church have always been interested in the activities of NCCR and I have seen them come to some of our events like the “Days of Remembrance.” One of my friends, Kiku Uno, moved to Amherst, Massachusetts, so I like to keep in touch with her by mailing her our flyers. I try to attend all of our meetings and I save informational flyers that I pick up at our friend Esther Fujimoto, who has always been interested in NCCR events. I even take our flyers to my dentist’s office, my hairdressers and one year when the redress campaign was in full swing, I managed to get the Cahuenga Library to put up a NCCR poster.

Toki Shiroishi

by Lucille Nakahara

